Showcase 2008

Highlights from Showcase 2008

Showcase 2008 Posters

The UW-Madison Showcase 2008 was held on Tuesday, April 1, at the UW-Madison Memorial Union. Unlocking creativity and sharing innovative ideas to make the campus work more effectively were at the center of Showcase 2008. This 9th annual idea-sharing event highlighted how units from across campus have successfully collaborated to improve work processes, learning environments, and campus climate. Over 400 people attended the event which included 49 poster exhibitors and technology demonstrations in four different categories. For poster descriptions, please visit our website and view the Best Practices 2008.

Feedback on Showcase 2008

What is one idea or Best Practice you might use/“steal” in the coming year?

Cross Campus Collaboration in Project Management
Making use of imaging tools in the Common Scholarship Application
Use of WordPress from eCALS newsletter
Switching to online student employee application process
Integrating LEAP concepts into my courses

What were the highlights of Showcase for you?

The chance to see all of the initiative across campus and to make easy contact
Keynote Speaker Sherwin Greenblatt
Camaraderie with this vibrant campus community of committed professionals
Concurrent Session on Creating a Collaborative Culture
Networking with colleagues and meeting new faces

What would you like us to keep (or change) for next year’s Showcase?

Liked the early start and feel for program
Keep the guest speakers
More concurrent sessions/optional talks
More handouts at poster session
Let the poster sessions run longer
It is all good. Keep it up. Terrific format.
Food and beverages pleasant surprise
Liked the combination of tables and structured session
It was well organized and presented.
A wonderful keynote speaker to motivate and energize folks

Former Bose CEO Showcase Keynote Speaker Sherwin Greenblatt

A respected leader in both the business world as well as in higher education, Sherwin Greenblatt has been devoted to continuous quality improvement throughout his career.

Sherwin shared experiences and anecdotes that transformed Bose into a world-class quality manufacturing organization. After his retirement from Bose in 2002, he began applying these principles and practices to higher education. Mr. Greenblatt has served as the Interim Executive Vice President of MIT and as the Director of the MIT Venture Mentoring Service, a program which supports innovation and entrepreneurial activity throughout the MIT community.

He is a community and professional leader, and has served as a Board member of the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston.

Mr. Greenblatt’s presentation is available online at the Showcase website.
